What's New In AutoCAD?

Arrange Tool: Optimized for user experiences on mobile and touch devices with features such as multi-touch gestures, responsive design, screen capture and more. Python Development: Enhanced Python language features with new data types and tools. New enhancements to support machine learning and neural networks are built on top of these enhancements. Data Linking: New data source types for connecting and sharing data with other applications. PDF DXF: Easier to use versioning and aligning features for non-native formats. Drafting View: Support for free-form drawings, including the ability to create arrows or modify closed polygons. See the video of the most prominent enhancements in AutoCAD 2023 at the end of this article. If you're using AutoCAD for the first time or are familiar with earlier versions, you might want to look through the many new features described in this article. And, if you're familiar with AutoCAD but haven't used it for a while, you might want to review the many improvements we've made in AutoCAD over the last few years. The following sections describe the most notable enhancements in the upcoming release. New Drafting View You may have never needed to use a drawing view other than the primary drawing view (for example, the 2D Drafting view), but you'll likely appreciate the new optional Drafting view. This view is available in a drop-down menu at the bottom of the status bar, and you can open it from the View menu (Figure 1). Figure 1. To access the Drafting view, click the status bar drop-down list and select the Drafting view. (click to enlarge) The Drafting view includes several new features, including a new toolbar and formatting options. (AutoCAD's top toolbar is always visible in the Drafting view, but you can expand it to see more options.) You can set your preferred units (Figure 2) and turn on the AutoCAD Drafting toolbar (Figure 3), and you can use some of the Drafting view formatting options in the Text Style dialog box as well as in the Format palette (Figure 4).
